LUCA TEDESCO, Dino Grandi e la Repubblica. Le tentazioni di una rentrée politica nel diario inedito di un collaboratore

It is a consolidated historiographic thesis that ex Fascist Minister, Dino Grandi, from the very beginning of the Italian Republic had abandoned every ambition to play a leading political role. The unpublished diary of Corrado Muscarà, his close assistant during Fascism, first to the Ministry of Justice and then to the Chamber of Fasci and Corporations, raises doubts about this interpretation. According to Muscarà and other trusted assistants, Grandi tried, above all by intervening on the Christian Democrat exponent Giovanni Gronchi, the future President of the Republic, to return to the Italian political scene.
